Democrats accuse Trump of abusing power, obstructing impeachment

Matter will pass to the House Judiciary Committee on Wed.

U.S. President Donald Trump solicited foreign interference to boost his chances of re-election next year, undermined national security and ordered an "unprecedented" campaign to obstruct Congress, Democrats said in a report on Tuesday that will form the basis of any formal impeachment charges against Trump.

In a 300-page report that alleged sweeping abuse of power, the Democratic-led House of Representatives Intelligence Committee said Trump had used U.S. military aid and the prospect of a White House visit to pressure his Ukrainian counterpart to undertake probes that would benefit Trump politically.

The Republican president "placed his own personal and political interests above the national interests of the United States, sought to undermine the integrity of the U.S. presidential election process, and endangered U.S. national security," the report said.

Democrats, who began the formal impeachment inquiry in September, also accused Trump of an "unprecedented" effort to obstruct the investigation, including refusing to provide documents and testimony from his top advisers, unsuccessful attempts to block career government officials from testifying and intimidation of witnesses.

"The evidence of the President's misconduct is overwhelming, and so too is the evidence of his obstruction of Congress," it said, adding that the wrongdoing was "not an isolated occurrence."

In a news conference following the release of the report, House Intelligence Committee Chairman Adam Schiff described Trump as a "president who believes that he is beyond indictment, beyond impeachment, beyond any form of accountability and indeed above the law."

Trump, who is in London for a NATO summit, has denied any wrongdoing and accused Democrats of using the impeachment process to overturn the results of the 2016 presidential election. Opinion polls show Amer-

White House spokeswoman Stephanie Grisham said House Democrats nothing more than their frustrations. Chairman Schiff's report reads like the ramblings of a basement blogger straining to prove something when there is evidence of nothing," Grisham said in a statement.

After a House Intelligence Committee vote at 6 p.m. EST Tuesday, the matter will then go to the House Judiciary Committee, which will open its proceedings on Wednesday. REUTERS

Officer stabbed, student shot at Wisconsin high school

2 A Wisconsin high school student on Tuesday stabbed a school resource officer, who responded by shooting the teenager, police said, in the second such incident over the last two days in the state. Oshkosh West High School, about 85 miles north of Milwaukee, was put on lockdown after the altercation, Oshkosh Chief of Police Dean Smith said during a news conference. Smith said the student wounded the officer with an "edged" weapon. The officer then fired his gun, shooting the 16-year-old once. Both the student and officer, who were not identified by police, were taken to the hospital where they were being treated for non-life-threatening injuries, Smith said. Smith did not disclose a possible motive. Hours later, the school's 1,700 students were reunited with their parents. REUTERS

Billie Eilish dominates 2019 on Apple Music

3 Newcomer Billie Eilish dominated Apple Music streams in 2019, scoring the top streamed album of the year with "When We Fall Asleep, Where Do We Go?," Apple Music said on Tuesday. Eilish, 17, who burst onto the alternative pop scene this year and is nominated for four Grammy Awards in January, came 5th on the list of most streamed songs, with "Bad Guy," Apple Music said in a year-end list. Eilish's "Bad Guy" single also came top of the most Shazamed songs of 2019, the music recognition app owned by Apple said. REUTERS

Harris was the only minority woman in the race.

U.S. Senator Kamala Harris ended her 2020 presidential bid on Tuesday, abandoning a campaign that began with promise for a rising Democratic Party star but faltered as she struggled to raise money and make a compelling case for her candidacy.

Her departure further narrows the field of White House contenders exactly two months before voting begins in Iowa, the first nominating contest, and gives her rivals a chance to court Harris' supporters in their final bids to shore up the nomination.

Harris, 55, the only minority woman in the race, would have been the first woman and second black

U.S. president if elected next November.

The senator from California positioned herself as a unifying candidate who could energize the party's base of young, diverse progressives while also appealing to more moderate voters.

Yet after climbing into double digits in opinion polls following a strong debate performance in June, Harris slid out of the top tier in recent months and lagged behind leading candidates' fundraising hauls.

"I've taken stock and looked at this from every angle, and over the last few days have come to one of the hardest decisions of my life," Harris said in an email to supporters on Tuesday. "My campaign for president simply doesn't have the financial resources we need to continue."

Harris finished September with $9 million in cash, according to finance disclosures her campaign filed. By comparison, Massachusetts Senator Elizabeth Warren had nearly $26 million at that point.

Harris' campaign recently began showing signs of trouble, including stagnant fundraising and public complaints by former staffers that her staff was being treated poorly.

"She just hasn't quite satisfactorily answered the 'what makes you better than the other candidates' question," said a longtime aide, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "That's the underlying biggest thing. She hasn't quite sufficiently explained her rationale for herself."

Joel Payne, an African-American strategist who worked for Democrat Hillary Clinton in the 2016 presidential campaign, said Harris failed to find her own identity as she tried to own the space on the political spectrum between progressives such as U.S. Senator Bernie Sanders and Warren and moderates such as former Vice President Joe Biden.

"I think she probably ended up alienating both" camps, he said.

Harris was polling badly in her home state of California — which will vote on "Super Tuesday" in March, an early important election day when 16 states will hold primary contests.

Payne said Harris exited the race at the right time before potentially embarrassing losses.

A perfect storm of unbelievable circumstances

Filmmakers Robert Kenner and Taki Oldham talk the insane story of false serial killer Henry Lee Lucas.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

What happens when a murder is closed? More times than not, most people are happy with that result, it brings a sense of relief to the victim's family and makes community members feel safe knowing a violent criminal is behind bars. But what if the killer behind bars didn't really commit the crime, even after a confession? It sounds pretty crazy right? But that has happened, hundreds of times – and that's just counting false confessions from one man. "The Confession Killer" examines the psychological phenomenon behind Henry Lee Lucas, who in 1983 began a confession spree claiming to be the culprit behind upwards of 600 murders. Now, the once-deemed worst serial killer in the country is proving to be nothing more than a man who had a knack for lying and a desire to please. Filmmakers Robert Kenner and Taki Oldham teamed up to uncover the almost unbelievable story behind Lucas and sat down with Metro to give more insight on the insanely unhinged tale that is quite frankly stranger than fiction.

What initially drove you both to make this docu-series about Henry Lee Lucas?

TO: I had seen a true-

crime documentary back in 2014, and it posed the question that if Lucas didn't kill all of these people, then who did? Way back then it was seen as an unanswerable question. DNA evidence has since come around, and sure enough, there have now been some isolated cases that no one was linking. There was a case here or a case there where DNA was actually finding the real killer, so to me, it felt like an opportunity to tell a new chapter of this story and start to get some answers. From there I did a bit of research and spoke to Robbie who saw this as a much bigger story.

RK: What I thought was so fascinating, with each case they would say "Oh, we got it wrong and it wasn't Henry." But they didn't put together that dozens of cases turned out to not be Henry. So there's a question that we were putting together that no one else was, which is how could this have happened? Here is the worst serial killer in US history, and yet every case is proving that Henry didn't do it. We just found that fascinating. Combine that with the conversations we had with victim's family members and the pain that they're going through of not being able to determine who really killed their loved ones, and there really is just an amazing series here. We spent about a year and a half on it before Netflix got involved, so it was about five years in the making. We got some incredible footage and everyone that we spoke to remembered this as an extremely important moment in their lives, we just had a wealth of material to work with which is extraordinary.

Was there anything that completely took you by surprise while working on this project?

TO: I was really shocked the whole way.

RK: Everything was shocking, it's a jaw-dropping story. We had all this footage of this murderer who murdered hundreds of people sitting in the sheriff's office, answering the telephone, drinking coffee and with no handcuffs on – something looked wrong. The story was constantly surprising us and riveting us. It's a story you don't normally get to tell. It goes beyond just being about a serial killer, it's about a system and the psychology behind how this happened.

Both Henry Lee Lucas and [Sheriff] Jim Boutwell have passed away, is there a part of you that wishes you had the opportunity to speak to them?

TO: If I could ask Boutwell one question, I'd be interested to ask him if he would do anything differently or what he would think about things now, given what happened with DNA. Even after Lucas had recanted and evidence had come out, he never changed his story. Would we hear anything different from him? I tend to think not.

Why do you think there were so many miscarriages of justice involved with this story?

TO: I think it was the perfect storm, you have a guy who for whatever reason decided to tell the world that he was the worst serial killer to ever live. You then have a police agency who was willing to believe him, and you have hundreds of other police and family members all over the country who just wanted cases solved and were probably a little too willing to believe it.

RK: Henry had an IQ of 87, but there was also something about Henry that was really smart and very convincing – plus he liked to please. Boutwell wanted to find a murderer and Henry was happy to play the role. It's not that we're uncovering a great conspiracy, we're looking at a psychological drama that we found incredibly fascinating.

New Sex Cream Works Like Magic for Older Men

Recent warnings on sex drugs leads to the creation of an amazing no pill option; key ingredients activate spencial sensation pathways, enhancing erections and triggering arousal

Daniel Watson
Medical News Today

BOSTON – The medical community now has a safer and more effective alternative to sex pills, which they can immediately start offering to male patients. It will not require a prescription.

The alternative, called Sensum™, is an amazing new sex cream that activates a sensation pathway on the penis known as TRPA1.

When applied as directed, it leads to incredible arousal and much more satisfying erections.

It also promotes powerful climaxes and ultimately results in significant improvements in performance.

"Men can expect outstanding sexual improvements with regular use. The penis will become hyper sensitive, making them easily aroused and excitable" explains Dr. Henry Esber, the Boston based scientist who introduced Sensum™ to market.

"And that's because Sensum™ does what no other sex pill or drug has done before – it stimulates a special sensory pathway right below the skin, which leads to phenomenal sensation."

Overtime, constant exposure (especially if circumcised) leads to decreased penis sensitivity, which can cause problems with arousal and erection quality. There just isn't enough feeling to get excited."

"Diabetes, anti-depressants and normal aging also leads to desensitization, a can make the situation even worse."

"This is what makes Sensum™ so effective and why the clinical studies and clinical use studies have been so positive."

MISDIAGNOSIS LEADS TO UNEEDED PRESCRIPTIONS

After years of clinical research and testing, Dr. Esber and his team have discovered an incredible compound that triggers arousal while helping men achieve erections more easily.

This compound isn't a drug. It's the active ingredient in Sensum™.

And according to users, it produces sensational results. Many men report remarkable improvements in sexual performance and overall satisfaction.

They are more sexually active than they've been in years with the average Sensum™ user over the age of 50.

Clinical studies show Sensum™'s key ingredient activates the TRPA1 sensation pathway right below the skin of the penis.

According to research, many men adults and seniors who suffer sexually have lost sensation in their penis due to constant rubbing and exposure and health related issues such as diabetes, hernia surgery, use of some anti-depressants, multiple sclerosis, and other type of illnesses.

This desensitization often makes sex extremely challenging. Without a 100% feeling in the penis, its next to impossible to get truly aroused.

Worse, modern day sex drugs have absolutely no effect on sensation and are laden with side effects. They simply stimulate an erection by enhancing blood flow.

It's why most men are rarely satisfied after taking them and why Sensum™ users are always stocking up on more and couldn't be happier.

"We knew the science behind Sensum™ was there, but we never expected results like we're seeing. It's far exceeded our expectations" said a spokesperson for the company.

A STAGGERING 80% IMPROVEMENT IN SENSATIVITY

Researchers have conducted several clinical studies on Sensum™ and the results from the most recent are undoubtedly the most impressive.

A data analysis of three clinical surveys of 370 men showed that an amazing 80% of Sensum™ users experienced dramatic improvements while using the cream and as a result were aroused easier and a phenomenal boost in performance.

Additionally, 77.4% of men also reported much more satisfying climaxes, making sex for both them and their partners nearly 300% more satisfying.

"I have full feeling and sensitivity back in my penis. Everything feels better. My erections are harder, I'm more easily aroused, I can finally climax again. This stuff honestly works like magic in the bedroom. I couldn't be happier at 66!" raves one Sensum™ user.

HOW SENSUM + WORKS

Sensum™ is a new sex cream for men that's to be applied twice a day for the first two weeks then just once every day after.

There are no harmful side effects for either the user or partner. It also does not require a prescription.

The active ingredient is an organic compound known as cinnamaldehyde with a patented combination of sexually rousing extracts.

Research shows that as men get older, they often lose sensitivity to the penis.

Although very subtle, this desensitization can significantly hinder sexual performance and lead to serious problems with becoming aroused and staying/getting hard.

The cinnamaldehyde in Sensum™ is one of the only known ingredients to activate a special sensation pathway on the penis called TRPA1. Once activated, it restores tremendous sensation to the penis, stimulating arousal and powerful erections.

NEW SEX CREAM MAY REPLACE POPULAR SEX PILLS: This new patented clinically proven arousal cream is now available nationwide.

This would explain why so many users are experiencing impressive results so quickly and why the distributors of Sensum™ offer their low cost cream with an amazing guarantee.

GUARANTEE DISCOUNTED SUPPLY TAKES RISK OFF CONSUMERS

A large percentage of men report life changing results with Sensum™. That's why it is now being sold with an above-industry standard guarantee.

"We can only make this guarantee because we are 100% certain this cream works," says Esber.

"We want to take risk off the consumers. So besides offering massive discounts, we're also offering this guarantee, so they don't have to risk a cent."

Here's how it works: Use the cream exactly as directed and you must feel a significant improvement in sexual sensations. You must be more easily aroused with harder, longer lasting erections and be having the best sex you've had in years.

Otherwise, simply return the empty bottles. Then, the company will refund your money immediately.

HOW TO GET SENSUM +

This is the official release of Sensum™. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply to any reader who calls within the next 48 hours.

C's with big test vs. Heat

Miami comes to Boston with one of the top records in the NBA.

MATT BURKE
matthew.burke@metro.us

The Celtics and Heat began this decade entangled in one of the fiercest rivalries in the NBA.

The 2010s could very well end with Boston and Miami once again at one another's throats.

The Heat are one of the surprise teams of the NBA early in the 2019-20 season, with Miami at 14-5 (the identical record of the Celtics).

Jimmy Butler was criticized this past offseason for fleeing a Philadelphia team ready to contend for a title, but Butler's elite play has brought the Heat back into the discussion as being one of the top teams in the Eastern Conference. Butler is averaging a team-high 18.8 points per game and is also leading Miami in steals per game (2.5) and assists (6.3).

Like the Celtics, Miami likes to play small as their top four scorers are swingmen or point guards (Kendrick Nunn's at 16.1 points per game, Goran Dragic's at 15.9, Tyler Herro at 14.4).

The Heat's small ball approach could spell trouble for the Celtics on Wednesday at the Garden (7:30 p.m., NBC Sports Boston) as the C's will likely be without Marcus Smart — who suffered a blow to his oblique in the Celtics' 113-104 win over the Knicks in New York on Sunday afternoon. Smart missed the Celtics' first seven playoff games last season after tearing his oblique late in the regular season.

"It wasn't as bad as the tear (on Sunday), but it's still sore and pretty tender," Smart said. "We're just going to take it slow and day-by-day re-evaluate it, and see what we have to do."

Offensively, the Celtics have been just fine lately, scoring over 100 points in their last four outings. Another good sign on the offensive end lately for the Celtics has been that it's not always Kemba Walker leading the team in scoring. Jayson Tatum was the high point man in the road games at Brooklyn on Black Friday and at Madison Square Garden on Sunday. When Walker went down with his neck injury, Jaylen Brown stepped up offensively and led the C's in scoring against the Nuggets and Kings.

The Celtics have had three players hovering around 20 scoring points per game this season, with Kemba Walker averaging 21.6 points, Jayson Tatum averaging 21.1 points and Jaylen Brown averaging 19.3 points.

Stephen Belichick a hot NFL head coach candidate?

Bill Belichick is a big believer in reaping what you sow, particularly when you're a coach in the NFL.

Belichick himself was an assistant coach in the league for 16 years before he got his first head coaching gig in Cleveland, and he always pushes his own assistant coaches to stay within the New England family until he thinks they're "ready."

It's highly unlikely he thinks that his own son, Stephen Belichick, is "ready" for an NFL head coaching job — but other teams are going to start calling, possibly as soon as this winter.

Stephen Belichick has been seen calling most of the plays on defense this season in New England, and all it's done is give the Patriots the best D they've had since the mid-2000s.

The Pats' previous two defensive playcallers have gotten head coaching jobs within the past two years (Matt Patricia in Detroit and Brian Flores in Miami), and neither of those guys ran a program as impressive as the 32-year-old Belichick has this season.

Sports Illustrated's

Albert Breer also wrote this week that he believes more teams will look toward defensive coaches for head coach openings this December and into January 2020.

"A year after six of eight open coaching spots went to candidates with offensive backgrounds, it's possible we see a correction in 2019," Breer wrote. "One reason: if everyone's been casting off the same pier for a while, there will naturally be less fish in that area."

The two teams that will be most linked to Stephen Belichick over the coming months if they both choose to fire their respective current coaches are the Giants and Browns.

The Giants seem poised to get back to their roots, focusing on the defensive side of the ball, after back-to-back offensive coach hires in Ben McAdoo and Pat Shurmur.

It's looking like Cleveland will be sticking with Freddie Kitchens for 2020, but if things change over the next few weeks don't be surprised if the Haslam family kicks the tires on Stephen Belichick.

A wild card here is the Cowboys, who finally seem ready to move on from Jason Garrett.

Jerry Jones seemingly holds the elder Belichick in high regard as he told a story about Bill bumping into him at a ski resort in the 1990s.

"I've thought about that many times," Jones said. "You never know where you can find a great coach. You can find them in a ski checkout line sometimes."

Pats offensive coordinator Josh McDaniels is also once again a hot commodity for open head jobs around the league.
